

Granular Gas

A granular gas consists of macroscopic particles in motion. When taking into account the dissipative nature of particle collisions, the physics of granular gases may be described by kinetic theory, similar to molecular gases.